GENERAL INFORMATION

An HSA is a trust or custodial account which is created exclusively for the benefit of the HSA Account Owner and which is generally used to pay qualified medical expenses. If you are eligible, contributions can be made to your HSA by either you and/or your employer. Qualified distributions from HSAs are tax-free.

DEFINITIONS

In general, a High Deductible Health Plan (HDHP) means, as defined in IRC Section 223(c)(2), a health plan which satisfies each of the following requirements regarding deductibles and expenses:

- The deductible is not less than $1,000 for single coverage and not less than $2,000 for family coverage (as adjusted for cost-of-living).
- The sum of the annual deductible and the other annual out-of-pocket expenses required to be paid under the plan (other than for premiums) for covered benefits does not exceed $5,000 for single coverage and $10,000 for family coverage (as adjusted for cost-of-living).

REQUIREMENTS

Certain Coverage Disregarded – Generally, you are ineligible for an HSA if you, while covered under an HDHP, are also covered under a health plan that is not an HDHP. However, you do not fail to be eligible for an HSA merely because, in addition to an HDHP, you have:

- (1) coverage for any benefit provided by permitted insurance (as defined in IRC Sec. 223(c)(3)), and
- (2) coverage (whether through insurance or otherwise) for accidents, disability, dental care, vision care, or long-term care.

Age 55 Catch-up Contributions – If you have attained age 55 before the close of the taxable year, you may be eligible to contribute an additional amount to your HSA. The additional contribution is determined as follows: $700 for 2006, $800 for 2007, $900 for 2008, $1,000 for 2009 and thereafter.
